

First ever image of isolated particles deemed infectious and disease-causing, called „virus“, specifically SARS-CoV-2.

Feng Shui, We Lus Lai, We Wlong, Institute for ViroLIEgy, University of Cabal *

Abstract

This is the first time ever in the history of viroLIEgy that sub-microscopic particles that are claimed to be disease-causing, infectious and replication-competent have been isolated and photographed.

The image obtained clearly shows the morphology and classification of the particles.

The work was done following the principles of modern viroLIEgy.

We hope to be able to help to put claims that so-called viruses don't exist to rest once and for all.

Introduction

For many decades countless of so-called scientists and researchers have tried to isolate a so-called "virus" without success. That led to the conclusion that the definition of „isolation“ in the case of viroLIEgy had to be changed in order for viroLIEgy to be able to claim to have isolated a so-called „virus“ and make claims about cause and effect that would otherwise be deemed ludicrous.

Thus so-called scientists and researchers in the field of viroLIEgy have stopped trying to isolate any "virus" in the true sense of the term "isolation". One very convenient and unbelievably accepted excuse for that is also the claim "that it had been proven long ago and is accepted as proven by so many that there is no need to prove it again".

Since the coup of the latest so-called "pandemic" that is said to have occurred and blamed on SARS-CoV-2, there are many more voices than ever before that go public with the notion that "viruses have never been shown to exist, never been isolated (in the true sense of that word), never been purified, never shown to cause any disease". This is very concerning for our profession as viroLIEgists, our masters and the narrative of so-called "vaccinations".

This is why we decided to silence those dissenting voices by isolating the maybe most famous so-called "virus" of our times - even though we don't have to because it has been done in the past and the existence of "viruses" is accepted and common knowledge.

Methods

To be consistent with our education as viroLIEgists we use standard methods of viroLIEgy to isolate the particles in question and produce the image of these particles, namely "point and declare".

The particles were detected on the floor outside in front of an ordinary supermarket and instantly secured by applying the simple "picking up and carrying to the research facility" technique.

The particles were prepared for imaging by removing all other particles that didn't fit the definition of the proposed "virus" particle and arranged in a way to make a good presentation of our predefined findings.

Magnification was not necessary as the particles were already large enough to be seen through the camera.

After the picture was taken it was edited to make the color and texture of the particles look like any other picture of a so-called "virus".

A scale and arrows were added to make the particles look like they have the correct size and to fulfill the high standards of the "point and declare" technique.

Results

The image below was taken after isolating and preparing the claimed-to-be "virus" particles for imaging. The "virus" family name-giving corona formed by alleged spike proteins can easily and clearly be seen.

Discussion

Any discussion should be over after this publication.

What else could "virus-deniers" possibly want as proof for the existence of viruses?!?

Although we consider this discussion over, we still need to research this issue further as we forgot to do control experiments due to time pressure and lack awareness of the necessity of such controls due to the absence of such steps in our education as viroLIEgists.

Also, we need more grant money from interested parties and wouldn't have any income if the LIE in viroLIEgy would be widely known. We also might get in deep, deep trouble by those with vested interests, like the powers behind the "vaccine" industry, governments and non-governmental bodies, in short the occultocracy.

We probably already disclosed too much already and better stop now.

Keep believing in viruses, please! Our careers (and frankly our lives) depend on it!

* No corresponding author is given because we fear for our safety and frankly wouldn't be able to answer the questions of the so-called "TeamNoVirus" in a satisfying manner anyway. "Science" should never be questioned!